Use Cases

---

Cyber security

With the increasing sophistication lately seen, more and more attacks are distributed using different IPs to stay under the detection threshold of security systems. In addition, new generation malware and viruses may target only specific geographical regions. Geolocation, the mapping of a network entity with its geographical position, can support the process of network forensics and analysis.

Hosting Companies and ISPs

A hosting company or ISP without public IP addresses is as good as a hotel without rooms. With the IPv4 depletion it's getting harder every day to launch a new business in this area. Host1Plus IP Resources service provides means to grow your business and plan the IPv6 transition in a timely manner.
