

Partner Review

Host1Plus has been straightforward and honest in our dealings and followed through fully on all commitments. I would characterize the company as innovative, motivated and sincere in their effort to deliver a high level of service and response and Data Sales Co. endeavors to deliver on these same traits. Both companies are privately owned and place value on partners that honor their commitments with no drama.

Since we started to work with Host1Plus five years ago, I noticed their improvement and that seems to be an ongoing commitment to better systems and reporting capabilities, hope they will not stop improving and developing. That is essential in the business world today.

Host1Plus has shared their goals and vision with us and this helps us understand the direction and create a shared vision.

And while many companies rely on email and do not want to spend the time required to build a personal relationship, people at Host1Plus make themselves available for phone calls and face to face meeting demonstrating that they understand the importance "relationship". I really appreciate their personal touch which has helped to build trust.

When it comes to communication, Host1Plus works hard to eliminate misunderstandings. Basically they adjust to partners or clients and work to find a channel which will be useful for effective communication.

I would recommend Host1Plus as professionals, who are serious about business and committed to results. They have always accepted feedback and this is important thing when it comes to partnership.

I would recommend Host1Plus as professionals, who are serious about business and committed to delivering results. They will always accept feedback and this is the most important thing when it comes to partnership.
