

Partner Review

We, at Kingston Smith, get on well with the Host1Plus team and enjoy a friendly and professional relationship. We are equally at home in a deep technical discussion during a formal meeting as in a social context. We have a close relationship with Host1Plus. Despite being over 1,600 km apart, we meet regularly both in the UK and in Lithuania. Both parties agree that good communication is vital.

Kingston Smith's combined geographic knowledge, commercial expertise and client empathy have given us a great track record in helping clients grow their business. Host1Plus also strive to deliver solutions to their clients, are constantly evolving and operate internationally.

Host1Plus have made significant progress while we have been working together. The team have always been ambitious but now do so from a more stable base. The technology continues to progress and management information and insight have improved significantly.

Kingston Smith and Host1Plus are both keen to build close, trusting and lasting relationships with our clients, delivered with industry knowledge. Host1Plus have built a reliable value for money and comprehensive service that is modern and constantly being updated.

Host1plus operate in a fast moving environment. They need to continue making progress to keep up with market changes and improving the quality of service to their customers.

Host1Plus is a growing company well run by an enthusiastic team. It is always interested in progress and never stands still. They have built a reliable value for money and comprehensive service that is modern and being constantly updated.

Kingston Smith

Kingston Smith is a top 20 accountancy and business advisory firm working out of six offices in London and the South East. With 62 partners and 500 staff across multiple sectors, our origins go back 95 years and many of our client relationships span decades.

As a firm, we work with a wide range of entrepreneurial businesses, private clients and not for profit organizations. Our clients are hugely diverse, but there is a single word that unites them: potential. As accountants, we of course crunch the numbers. But it's the way we listen and question that sets us apart.

Outside the UK, Kingston Smith's founder membership of Morison KSi enables us to offer our clients the strength and experience of 85 partner offices worldwide to support our international reach.
